V. Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement1. statement

Novelty (N)	Claims	NONE	YES
	Claims	1,8,9,13,14,15	NO
Inventive Step (IS)	Claims	NONE	YES
	Claims	2-7,10-12,	NO
Industrial Applicability (IA)	Claims	1-15	YES
	Claims	NONE	NO

2. citations and explanations (Rule 70.7)

Claims 1, 8, 9, 13 and 15 lack novelty under PCT Article 33(2) as being anticipated by Braddock, III (US Patent 4,412,287).

As per claims 1, 8, 9, 13, 14, and 15, Braddock, III discloses:

measuring/means for measuring an imbalance.../computing a plurality of buy/sell imbalances...computing/means for computing a projected price movement.../computing matching projected price movements...setting/means for setting a market price.../setting market prices...automatically generating/means for automatically generating.../wherein the additional buy orders or sell orders for the instrument are automatically generated at the market price if the projected price movement is greater than or equals...(Col. 7, lines 13-36);

generating/means for generating an electronic currency...crediting/means for crediting a first trader's account...debiting a second trader's...(Col. 6, lines 37-47).

Claims 2, 3, 10, and 11 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Braddock, III (US Patent 4,412,287) in view of Perg, et al. (US Patent 5,237,500).

As per claims 2, 3, 10, 11, Braddock, III fails to teach the following, however Perg, et al discloses:

wherein the electronic currency is Hollywood dollars...further comprising exchanging/means for exchanging the Hollywood dollars in the first or second trader's account for desired currency...(Col. 1, lines 14-19, where the examiner is interpreting "Hollywood dollars" as the "constant dollar financial instrument")

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to exchange the Hollywood dollars in the first or second trader's account for a desired currency because if an exchange occurs using the wrong type of currency, then the exchange would have no real value.

V. 2. REASONED STATEMENTS - CITATIONS AND EXPLANATIONS (Continued):

Claims 4-7 and 12 lack an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over the prior art as applied in the immediately preceding paragraph and further in view of Stein et al., (US Patent 5,826,241).

As per claims 4-7 and 12, neither Braddock, III or Perg, et al teach the following, however Stein, et al discloses: exchanged...via a secured communication.../purchasing/means for purchasing goods or services...on the Internet.../wherein a request for the purchase is transmitted to the vendor's web site via a secured communication.../wherein the vendor debits the first or second trader's account in the Hollywood dollars...via a secured communication...(Col. 9, lines 49-54).

Stein, et al does not specifically state that the exchange is done on a web site, however he does disclose that the exchange is done on the Internet making it obvious to use a web site to implement the operation. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to request an exchange, to purchase goods, to request a purchase, and to debit accounts through a web site on the Internet via a secured communication because when executing financial transactions on the Internet, these are the most traditional tools used in Internet technology for making the most logical, safest purchases with the lowest risk factors.
